Commit your work to the Lord & it will succeed - Proverbs 16:3

Hi Friends & Neighbors,

Wow, it's hot. As I write this letter,  the temp will hit 109° today and maybe even hotter tomorrow. This year has been like no other in my 36 seasons as a licensed applicator. It's been unseasonably warm and dry since March. This late June heatwave is smashing records as I write this. I want to give you two important tips for your lawn and ask one favor.

First, mow high. I listen to all the so-called  experts on watering and shake my head. Besides not being very accurate, they rarely talk about the connection between mow height and water conservation. A mow height of three inches encourages deeper grass roots, holds more water, and the grass will actually shade itself. Mowing high encourages turf health and discourages weeds and crabgrass. Healthy, dense turf is THE BEST filter for our wonderful aquifer. Did you know that healthy, dense turf also significantly reduces or even eliminates your home's personal carbon footprint? Oh yeah, and healthy turf reduces heat around your home by as much as 14°. Take care of your lawn, and it will take care of you!

When it comes to watering, the one-size-fits-all watering recommendations that are going around right now just don't work. First, soil type plays a huge part in how effective your watering will be.  Most information cited by "experts" are from different parts of the country. Most of the time, they come from The Midwest where humidity radically lessens evaporation rates. Thankfully, we are much less humid, but that means that evaporation happens much faster here. Every other day watering doesn't work when it's this hot in our region. I even heard one official recommend only watering every 5th day, but water deep. That just won't work.

So here is the plan we suggest. We usually advise against nighttime watering (it promotes disease), but in this extreme heat, we think the lesser of two evils is to water every night to avoid evaporation. When temps go back to normal, you can adjust accordingly. If you have sandy soil, you may need to water a second time during the day if we continue to have such high temperatures. See our website for more watering tips.

Now my request. Please be patient with us. Like many other businesses, we are short-handed. Every single one of us at Living Water is doing our very best to keep up. Owners and managers are on trucks everyday helping out. I cannot say enough about our employees. They have worked so hard for our customers and our company. We could not do any of this without them. 2021 is a harder year than 2020 for many businesses, including ours. It's hard to believe, but that's how it is. We will do our best for you as we have endeavored to do for over 30 years. I am holding on to a wonderful promise from the Bible: "He gives strength to the weary." That may be something for you to hold on to as well. These last 16 months have been hard on all of us, but God "gives strength to the weary."

Until next time, stay cool, be kind, and be blessed!
Mike

"Great company with friendly, polite office staff and Lawn Care personnel! I had to ask them to not blow the little bit of leaves from my patio because it was scared my kitties! They were very nice about the request and the gentleman that had used the blower came to the door and apologized! Really nice guys! "
