Dear Friends & Neighbors,

One of my favorite older movies is Groundhog Day. If you've seen it, you probably remember the plot. It's pretty simple, super funny, and had a great message in the end. The plot is about a guy who woke up every morning and relived the exact same day over and over again. Snow and super cold temperatures this February and March absolutely reminded me of that movie. The difference was that after awhile it wasn't SO funny, but the message in the end is pretty great. Here is the message: I THINK IT IS FINALLY OVER!

I want to thank you ahead of time for your patience, because while spring is insane in our industry, losing a whole month is only gonna make it that much more hectic. We promise to do our very best for you though!

We are super excited about something coming up, and want to share it with you! Living Water is sponsoring the Pet Rescue/Adoption Room at the Northwest Pet Expo this year. Through this, we have gotten to partner with some amazing rescue groups. Over 20 different pet rescue groups will be present at the Expo. Every creature from ferrets to turtles, dogs to cats, and unicorns will be there. Ok the last one I made up, but there is a horse rescue! So what's the connection between pets and Lawn and Tree care?
